

Catarrah

May affect any portion of the body where the mucous membrane is found. But catarrah of the head is by far the most common, and the most difficult to be treated. It cannot be cured by local applications. Being a constitutional disease it requires a general treatment.

Ringing Noises

Hood's Sarsaparilla, which works through the blood, eradicates the impurity which causes and promotes the catarrah, and soon effects a permanent cure. At the same time Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up the whole system, and makes one feel renewed in strength and health. If you suffer from catarrah, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Impure Blood

I used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrah, and received great relief and benefit from it. The catarrah was very disagreeable, especially in the winter, causing constant discharges from the eyes, and soon effects a permanent cure. I can never without the medicine in my house as I think it is worth its weight in gold.

Cures Catarrah

I was troubled with that annoying disease, nasal catarrah, and never found relief until I used Hood's Sarsaparilla. J. L. BERRY, Marksburg, Ky. N. B. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla.

CATARRH

is a disease of the mucous membrane, generally originating in the nasal passages and maintaining its seat in the head. From this source it sends forth a poisonous virus into the stomach and through the respiratory organs, corrupting the blood and producing other troubles and dangerous symptoms.

A particle is applied to each nostril and is a greasy, sticky substance, which is easily absorbed, and registered, to each nostril.

THE WESTERN SENTINEL

Cutting Corn with a Reaper.

Editors Country Gentlemen: My neighbors laugh at me for spending so much on agricultural papers, but I continue to take them nevertheless, and have saved this fall more money in harvesting my corn crop than would pay the subscription for the Country Gentleman for twenty years.

by putting in practice ideas given in it. Last year I read an article by one of the many contributors, on picking off the corn as soon as it became glazed generally, and throwing it in heaps to ripen, and then cutting up the stalks while green as well as the ears. I tried and raised a great gain.

This year I read of Mr. Rice's plan of cutting his fodder corn with the reaper, and putting the two plans together in my field corn I found it worked very economically, very satisfactorily, and very fast as five men could pick off the ears. I rigged three horses on the reaper and started the pickers at each corner, so as to keep but two rows ahead, by which they had to throw the ears only outside of the row the reaper cut two rows at a time. The corn has ripened as well as any corn I ever raised, while the stalks are quietly sleeping in the silo, and in vast better condition for cattle food than if turning it to woody fibre by exposure to the sun and wind as usual.

Household Receipts.

CUP PUDDING.

Break an egg in a coffee-cup and beat thoroughly, then add one table-spoonful of flour and a pinch of salt; pour on milk until the cup is nearly full, then beat again and place in oven and bake twenty minutes. Eat while it is hot, with a sauce made with the whites of eggs and sugar beaten together till stiff.

GOOD YEAST.

Take six large potatoes, boil in two quarts of water, take a handful of hops and tie in a cloth, boil in the potato water; when cool add a half cup of sugar, half cup salt and tablespoonful of ginger, one yeast cake; let it get frothy; bottle it. It will keep for six months.

BROILED BEEFSTEAK.

Flatten with a wooden spoon, and broil upon a buttered grid-iron over a clear fire; lay upon a hot dish and season with pepper, salt and butter. Cover with hot dish five minutes before carving.

FRIED RAW POTATOES.

Pare and thinly slice raw potatoes; let them stand in cold water half an hour; drain in a colander and fry in melted butter; cover closely, but stir occasionally; season with salt and pepper.

GINGER CAKE.

One and one-half cup of molasses, one-half cup brown sugar, same of butter and sweet milk, one teaspoonful each of soda, ginger, allspice and cinnamon, three cups sifted flour.

BRAD OMELET.

One cup of sweet milk, one cup of fine bread crumbs without crust, a little salt and pepper, beat it all together; add two well beaten eggs, put in a frying pan a small lump of butter, let it melt and run all over the pan; pour in the mixture, cook gently until it sets (about fifteen minutes), loosen the edges and fold one half over the other; now put on a hot plate to fit the pan, hold firmly and turn the pan over; it will come out nice and whole.

Exclusive Grain Diet for Poultry.

There is no more wisdom in confining poultry exclusively to a grain diet than in keeping animals on a food devoid of bulk. In the growing season the hens eat grass, grain, seeds and in winter they may be given more bulky food than they usually receive, and at a less cost than that of feeding grain exclusively. If clover hay be finely cut, boiling water be poured over it and the mass well sprinkled with a mixture of ground grain, and seasoned with a little salt, they eat it willingly, and it affords an agreeable variety. The clover also largely assists in supplying albumen to the eggs, while the health of the fowls is promoted by the food not being very concentrated. No doubt some may consider such feed as suitable only for a cow or horse, but it is also good for poultry. If hens are kept on corn they become exceedingly fat, and as unfit for laying as an over fat animal is for breeding, but feed them on a variety which contains more of the flesh forming elements than the carbonaceous, and they give better results. As the stock should be kept warm and comfortable, so should the fowls. It is much cheaper to provide suitable quarters than to keep them from freezing by stuffing with corn. They will also eat dry hay, if cut into short lengths; but it is better to feed it moistened and warm.—American Agriculturist.

The farmer who has a hundred bales of cotton piled up under his shed may strike the passer-by as a thriving son of the soil, but he who has his crib loaded down with corn, and his smoke-house reeking with sweet hams and cured bacon is a better farmer and a richer man than the one with his factor's claims unsettled, and no provisions on which to feed his family and stock. The successful farmer is he who makes what he needs to eat and lives at home.

A flaw in the shaft endangers a safe and steady voyage. Use Warner's Log Cabin Rose Cream, and keep your head cleared of catarrah on your voyage through life. 50c.

The turnip crop in nearly every section of North Carolina is said to be a success.

HOW DO WE DIG OUR GRAVES?

We must eat or we cannot live. This we all know. But do we all know that we die by eating? It is said we dig our graves with our teeth. How foolish this sounds. Yet it is fearfully true. We are terrified at the approach of the cholera and yellow fever, yet there is a disease constantly at our doors and in our houses far more dangerous and destructive. Most people have in their own stomachs a poison, more slow, but quite as fatal as the germs of those maladies which sweep men into eternity by thousands without warning in the times of great epidemics. But it is a mystery that, if we are watchful, we can tell when we are threatened. The following are among the symptoms, yet they do not always necessarily appear in the same order, nor are they always the same in the recent cases. These are a dull and sleepy feeling; a bad taste in the mouth, especially in the morning; the appetite is changeable, sometimes poor and again it seems as though the patient could not eat enough, and occasionally no appetite at all; dullness and singleness of mind; no ambition to study or work; more or less headache and heaviness in the head; dizziness on rising to the feet or moving suddenly; furred and coated tongue; a sense of heat on the stomach that nothing removes; hot and dry skin at times; yellow tinge in the eyes; scanty and high-colored urine; sour taste in the mouth, frequently attended by belching of the heart; impaired vision, with spots that seem to be swimming in the air before the eyes; a cough, with a greenish-colored expectoration; poor nights' rest; a sticky saliva about the teeth and gums; hands and feet cold and clammy; irritable temper and head bound up and costive. The disease has puzzled the physicians and killed many of them. It is the most complicated and mysterious of all diseases. It is treated as cholera, dysentery, again as malaria and even as typhoid fever. But its real nature is a case of constipation and dyspepsia. Diseases in the digestive organs and soon affects all the others through the corrupted and poisoned blood. Often the whole body, including the nervous system is literally starved, even when the food is plentiful, and the story of the disease is told.

Experience has shown that there is but one remedy that can certainly cure this disease in all its stages, namely, Shaker's Root or Seigal's Syrup has proved me to good health after years of suffering.

Up to this point, I had given up to die with dyspepsia when I first saw the advertisement of Shaker's Root or Seigal's Syrup. I bought a bottle and tried it. I had been told that it was a house-hold word, and I was sure to get the good results.
